

Dave Boyer

Regional Vice President, Northeast Ohio office
Rudolph Libbe Group

While growing up in Poughkeepsie, New York, Dave realized at a young age that he wanted to pursue a career in construction. He earned a B.S. degree in construction engineering and management and graduated from Syracuse University in 1993.

Dave entered the professional world with project management and senior estimator roles at Industrial Construction Company, an industrial construction company. With a decade of heavy industrial experience under his belt, Rudolph Libbe Inc. recruited Dave as a project manager in 2004. His experience as a project manager and estimator helped prepare him for the opportunity to establish the company's northeast Ohio office in 2005.

Now, as regional vice president, Dave oversees strategic planning and growth for Rudolph Libbe Group's Cleveland market office located in North Ridgeville. His responsibilities include recruiting, training and development of field and office teams. Dave also spearheads regional marketing efforts and sales functions as part of the corporate growth strategy.

Dave is recognized for the exceptional service and support he provides to his customers. He is also known for his steadfast track record, detail-oriented approach and market expertise. Always striving to exceed expectations and minimize the impact on his customers' businesses, Dave is a proven leader with an unwavering commitment to RLG's core values.

Dave is a member of Vistage, Cleveland Engineering Society and the Association of Iron and Steel Technology.
